

As a flight attendant, I am extremely concerned about any future use of cell phones onboard commercial aircraft. The space is too confined for such an invasion. Other public transportation facilities can provide many painful encounter stories verifying verbal and physical altercations among passengers over the use of cell phones. Just think how hard it will be to land and aircraft to restore order. There is a huge difference in pulling off the road and landing. More importantly, with aircraft getting larger, the thought of a well-crafted terrorist takeover being made easier through the use of a cell phone gives me chills. NO CELL PHONES ONBOARD!!!!!!
